200 Employees Dropped From State Departments

IN AGRICULTURE, OIL INSPECTION, DAIRY AND FOOD

ACTION TAKEN BY R. A. TROVATTEN, RECENTLY NAMED COMMISSIONER

SENDS LETTER TO NUMBER DEPARTMENT EMPLOYEES REQUESTING RESIGNATIONS

St. Paul, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—Gov. Floyd B. Olson's campaign for "efficiency and honesty in state government" has resulted indirectly today in a request for the resignations of 200 employees of the state departments of agriculture, oil inspection, dairy and food.

The action was taken by R. A. Trovatten, appointed by Olson several months ago as commissioner of the departments involved. Trovatten said in a letter to the employees that the resignations were sought "to allow a fair, full and impartial equity in adjustment of positions."

"The request for resignations does not mean, however, that any large number of persons will lose their positions," Trovatten said. "I do not know how many employees will be let out and how many retained."

He said that the resignation requests were no reflection on the work of the employees and did not imply that they were to be discharged.

Among the adjustments which Trovatten is believed to be contemplating is placing the department of oil inspection under civil service regulations. The department of agriculture has been so regulated for more than 25 years.

It was recalled today that among the promises made by Olson in his 1930 campaign was that the agricultural department would be reorganized along lines which would provide greater aid for farmers. His first action as commissioner was to appoint Trovatten.

Among the 200 employees whose resignations were requested are J. H. Hay, deputy commissioner of agriculture; A. D. Sibbald, deputy commissioner of dairy and food, and Hjalmar A. Nilsson, chief oil inspector.

24 LAND SALES OF STATE-OWNED LANDS

St. Paul, May 1.—(U.P.)—Stafford King, state auditor, today announced 24 land sales of state-owned lands. The money so raised will go to the permanent trust fund.

The sales will be held as follows: Aitkin county at Aitkin on May 25; Beltrami county, Bemidji, May 11; Cass county, Walker, May 15; Crow Wing, Brainerd, May 15; Morrison, Little Falls, June 5; Ottertail, Fergus Falls, June 6; Polk, Crookston, May 14; St. Louis, Duluth, May 23, and Todd, Long Prairie, June 5.

BODY OF FARMER IS FOUND PINNED UNDER HIS CAR

Little Falls, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—The body of August Smuda, 25, farmer, today was found pinned under his overturned automobile on the highway west of here. Tracks along the road showed the automobile had jumped the ditch and upset, pinning the farmer underneath. Smuda left Little Falls for his home last night.

April Showers in Twin Cities on First of May

St. Paul, May 1.—(U.P.)—April traditional showers continued today although it was the first of May. Showers fell during the morning in the Twin Cities and were forecast for all sections of the state during the day or tonight.

Congressman Knutson in Naval Hospital, Suffering from Flu

Washington, May 1.—(U.P.)—Representative Knutson, republican, Minnesota, who went to the Naval hospital suffering from influenza, was said to be doing well. Doctors said he would probably be released at the end of the week.

RED FLAG RAISED ON FRENCH CATHEDRAL

Arras, France, May 1.—(U.P.)—A red flag was raised during the night on the spire of the cathedral, rebuilt since the war. It was removed today.

National Bank of Minneapolis
Rosemount, Minn., May 1.—The First National Bank of Rosemount today discarded its government charter to become a state bank. Its capital is $25,000 and a surplus of $12,500.

RECURRENT QUAKE DESTROY 20 TOWNS IN THE CAUCASUS

Moscow, May 1.—(U.P.)—Recurrent earthquakes Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday devastated the Tsandersk area in the Caucasian region and destroyed 20 additional villages.

The death toll has not been determined. Incessant rain has aggravated suffering and made communications difficult.

MAD SHOOTING SPREE OCCURS IN CHICAGO LOOP

WITHIN AN HOUR MAYOR CERMAK PERSONALLY TAKES CHARGE OF CASE

ORDERS SPEEDY JUSTICE AND QUESTIONS MAN WHO CONFESSED MURDER

Chicago, May 1.—(U.P.)—Anthony Ruthy, the policeman of "visions" in the Lingle murder case, was killed at his post and another patrolman was near death today as the result of a mad shooting spree which a fleeing bandit staged in the same loop section where Ruthy chased but failed to catch, Lingle's slayer on last June 9.

Frank Jordan, 35, has confessed he was the man who killed Ruthy, critically wounded Policeman Patrick Durkin, and threw thousands of loop pedestrians into a panic at the 5 P. M. rush hour, was captured finally by a steamship line clerk, Ernest Schaebslin.

Within an hour after the shooting, Mayor Anton J. Cermak personally took charge of the case, ordered "speedy justice," and himself questioned Jordan, who today confessed to a coroner's jury that he had shot the policeman and had robbed several banks.

"I confessed to Mayor Cermak because I knew he was a man and would keep his promise to see that I got a square deal," Jordan testified.

It was Ruthy who once identified Frank Foster as the man he chased after Lingle was killed. Later he said Foster was not the man, explaining his previous story by saying that he was subject to "visions." X-rays showed his skull had been cracked in an accident several years before.

Despite Ruthy's admission that he often had visions of Abraham Lincoln, a dog, and "the Good Lord Himself," he was considered efficient for routine traffic work and retained his post at the Randolph-Michigan intersection, above the subway where Lingle died.

Durkin and several private detectives surrounded Jordan, wanted on charges of robbing two Illinois banks, on Ruthy's corner. As one of the detectives placed his hand upon Jordan's shoulder, the fugitive turned suddenly, drew a gun, shot Ruthy and Durkin, the only men in uniforms, and fled.

After a wild chase through the loop, in which Jordan fired several times at a group of police who chased him, the bandit was felled by a flying tackle from Schaebslin.

NIGHT WATCHMAN IS STRANGLER

2 INMATES AT LIMA HOSPITAL FOR CRIMINAL INSANE COMMIT DEED

Lima, O., May 1.—(U.P.)—Louis Kiel, 48, a night watchman at the Lima State hospital for criminal insane, was strangled to death today by two inmates, one of whom escaped from the hospital.

Kiel's slayers were John Powell, 24, of Columbus, and Samuel Nelson, 19, negro, of Cleveland, according to Dr. W. H. Vorbau, superintendent of the institution.

Powell was caught by other guards as he attempted to escape through a high window. Nelson managed to get through the window, however, and was being hunted by city and county officers.

Kiel was attacked as he was making his rounds of the ward in which the two prisoners were confined. He was suddenly pounced upon, dragged beat him with their hands, and beat him with their hands.

Attracted by the scuffle, guards rushed into the dormitory in time to seize Powell as he was going through the window. The other prisoner had already escaped by the same route. A posse was immediately organized but the fugitive had vanished.

Dr. Vorbau in revealing the attack intimated it was caused by crowded conditions at the institution. He said 40 prisoners were occupying quarters originally prepared for 35.

Amazing Story That Al Capone Has Been Dead 2 Years, Half Brother Ruling in His Stead

"REAL DETECTIVE," CHICAGO MAGAZINE, PUBLISHES STORY

JEALOUSY OF HIS POWER GIVEN AS REASON FOR "ASSASSINATION"

GIACOMO CALABRESE, SUCCESSOR, BOASTS SYNTHETIC SCAR

Chicago, May 1.—(U.P.)—Al Capone has been dead two years, "taken for a ride," and in his stead a half-brother, Giacomo Calabrese, with a synthetic scar, rules the underworld under the Capone name, according to a strange and amazing story released to an incredulous world today by the magazine, "Real Detective," a Chicago publication.

The article, captioned "Al Capone is Dead!" and written by "Bruce Pope, a Chicago newspaperman," is the first of a series which, its author promises, will prove that Al is dead and a false "king" was set up secretly, before it ends. Jealousy over his power and his love for a woman were given as the reasons for his assassination. The love angle, however, is not developed in the first article.

The story, as the magazine publisher, J. H. Lansinger, promises it will appear in the June issue, runs as follows:

Shortly before a man police—and everybody else—thought was Al Capone was arrested in Philadelphia and sentenced to a year on the comparatively minor charge of carrying a pistol, Capone really was "taken for a ride" and murdered in the same manner so many gangsters have met their death.

Then propelled by the mysterious and sinister hand of Johnny Torrio, Capone's predecessor in Chicago, came into the picture the enigmatic Giacomo Calabrese, half-brother of Al, who previously had undergone an operation at the hands of plastic surgeons to acquire the scars that marked the gang chief and gave him his nickname.

Calabrese permitted himself to be arrested and jailed. After a year in jail, Calabrese emerged to take Capone's place and since has ruled the gangs, but always at the orders of Torrio.

Pope wrote that he had documentary proof of his story and that it has been deposited in a Chicago bank to be released when the series ends.

The information, Pope wrote, came from an informant, "whose identity obviously cannot be revealed." Not more than five gangsters know the story, Pope wrote, and perhaps not that many. Graphs, purporting to show the difference in facial features between the real Al Capone and the imposter, are to be published.

Capone himself got a laugh out of the story when reached by the United Press.

"Who do I look like?" he asked when asked if he actually were dead. "Do I look like Calabrese? That's a lot of hokey." He smiled and the scar—whether made by hoodlum or surgeon's knife—crinkled on his left cheek.

"Let 'em think I'm dead," Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, also laughed and said: "If you think Al Capone's dead, you're crazy."

Roche said there actually is a hoodlum named Giacomo Calabrese but that he is a minor gangster in Chicago Heights "and never could shine like that."

GIANT GERMAN FLYING BOAT OFF FOR RIO DE ORO

Las Palmas, Canary Islands, May 1.—(U.P.)—The giant German flying boat DO-X started today for Rio de Oro, on the coast of Africa, en route to Brazil and New York.

The distance from Las Palmas to Rio de Oro is 248 miles. From the latter point the DO-X will fly down to Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, and then start the Atlantic crossing to South America.

NO GIRLS TO SIT IN CLASSES WITH FLAPPING PANT LEGS

Dilworth, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—The girls of Dilworth high school will not, it appeared today, wear pajamas to classes.

"Go home," said Albert Zech, school principal, "and put some clothes on." The remark was addressed to five girls who arrived at school clad in sleeveless pajamas with flared trousers.

"No girl will ever sit in my classes with flapping pant legs," The girls went home and returned in more usual school dress.

SURVEY BANK ACCOUNTS OF POLICE OFFICERS

"SUBSTANTIAL AMOUNTS" DEPOSITED UNDER NAMES OF TWO IN MINNEAPOLIS

SPECIAL GRAND JURY IN MINNEAPOLIS INVESTIGATES GRAFT CHARGES

Minneapolis, May 1.—(U.P.)—Members of a special grand jury investigating charges of graft and corruption in the Minneapolis police department completed today a survey of accounts maintained in five banks by police and city officials.

"Substantial amounts" were found deposited under the names of two officials, it was said. Additional records were brought into court today and an investigation was begun into whether the officials kept more than one bank account each.

It was announced that all accounts of persons under suspicion of furnishing protection to liquor, gambling and vice resorts will have been checked within a few days. The jurors then will attempt to learn the source of incomes which they consider excessive.

Accounts of 54 Hennepin county banks will be brought into the jury room by bank officials and cashiers before the inquiry is concluded.

Little Miss Hoover has been acting as hostess to the country boy from Colorado, drinking in tales of the cowboys on the plains, listening to the doleful music of the harmonica as played by Bryan, and tagging along behind him everywhere he goes.

Their association may soon be cut short to permit Untied to return home. While the White House is cautious about divulging the time of his departure, indications are that Bryan would leave the executive mansion today.

WHAT A 13 YEAR OLD LAD SHOULD SEE IN CAPITAL

PRESIDENT HOOVER HAS DEFINITE IDEAS ABOUT SUCH ITINERARY

WORKS OUT SIGHT-SEEING TOUR FOR YOUNG GUEST, BRYAN UNTIED

Washington, May 1.—(U.P.)—President Hoover has definite ideas about what a thirteen year old lad should see.

They include the Washington monument, the home of George Washington, how they make money in the bureau of engraving, the Roosevelt collection of animals in the national museum, the Lindbergh plane, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the zoo.

That at least is the sightseeing tour he worked out with his young guest, Bryan Untied, the quiet but very confident young man brought from Colorado because of his heroism in a school bus tragedy.

The call for breakfast today found young Untied with all of Mr. Hoover's ideas fulfilled, except the trip to the zoo. He promised to take that trip the first thing, if his six-year-old admirer, Peggy Ann Hoover, will let him out of her sight that long.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY IS OBSERVED IN WORLD

AUTHORITIES IN MANY COUNTRIES RESTRICT DISORDERS TO MINIMUM

STATEWIDE HUNGER MARCH INITIATED BY DEMONSTRATION AT COLUMBUS, OHIO (By United Press)

International Labor Day was celebrated in all parts of the world today with police and troops on guard in many countries to restrict disorders to a minimum.

A sharp clash occurred in Germany, where communists and fascists engaged in a gun fight in which seven were wounded.

In Berlin a policeman was critically wounded and about a score of extremists were arrested.

French officials arrested or deported a similar number of agitators but maintained the calmest atmosphere of any May Day since the war.

Hundreds of persons were reported arrested in Japan to prevent demonstrations.

Police clashed with demonstrators at Adelaide, Australia, arresting half a dozen.

New York, May 1.—A threat of fighting between communists and socialists in a proletarian May Day "pageant of progress" led Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney to concentrate several hundred mounted and well-armed policemen today at Union Square, ready to put down any disorders.

Oklahoma City, May 1.—Governor W. H. Murray today ordered out 5,000 national guardsmen because of "alarming reports of threatened food riots and unusual activity by agitators."

Governor Murray said his action was prompted by recent thefts of large quantities of explosives from oil company warehouses in several cities throughout the state.

Tokio, May 1.—Sixteen persons, including several policemen, were injured today when authorities put into effect their announced intention to supervise May Day demonstrations.

Of 707 arrested, 202 were released, police said. Thousands of persons marched in a May Day parade, which passed without incident.

Vienna, Austria, May 1.—Twice the usual number of May Day spectators watched 70,000 persons parade today, without incident.

Chicago, May 1.—About 1,200 communists expected to parade here today in what they termed a "thoroughly peaceful demonstration."

Cleveland, O., May 1.—A statewide hunger march, which is to converge on the capital, was to be initiated today by a mammoth demonstration in Public Square.

The state committee of unemployed councils announced the marchers would start out from the square and would be joined en route by delegates from other cities.

Boston, May 1.—More than 350 policemen surrounded Boston Common today to prevent any communistic celebration of May Day. Police were ordered to resort to nightsticks freely to end any riots.

Cape Town, South Africa, May 1.—May Day demonstrators, shouting "we want bread," fought with police today. A few were injured and several arrests were made. Police clubbed the demonstrators and dispersed them after they had raided the Carlton hotel and two famous clubs.

Warsaw, Poland, May 1.—Five persons were wounded, including a policeman, when communists attempted a demonstration today in spite of an official ban against May Day celebrations. Otherwise the city was quiet.

New York, May 1.—New York's annual May Day celebration marked by three district groups in demonstrations in Union Square, got under way promptly on schedule and with no disturbance today.

Barcelona, Spain, May 1.—Fatal rioting broke out today when a May Day (Continued on Page 8, Column 1)

23 MILLION BUSHELS STORED IN ELEVATORS

PURCHASE COMPLETED AT TERMINAL ELEVATORS, MINNEAPOLIS AND DULUTH

LARGEST EXCHANGE OF GRAIN EVER COMPLETED IN 1 DAY ON ANY WORLD MARKET

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—The federal farm board today took control of 23,061,000 bushels of wheat stored in terminal elevators at Minneapolis and Duluth, completing purchase of grain bought in recent months for May delivery.

Officials of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, which handled the transaction, said it was probably the largest exchange of grain ever completed in one day on any world market.

The Chamber of Commerce clearing house turned the grain, most of which was owned by elevators, over to the grain stabilization corporation, a farm board subsidy. The transaction was for cash.

Payment was made on the basis of the wheat price at the time each individual purchase of wheat for May delivery was made. The payment totaled about $18,000,000.

Today's transaction brought the amount of wheat which the farm board is expected to hold on July 1, when the 1931 crop becomes available, to approximately 200,000,000 bushels.

In commenting on the magnitude of the transaction, Chamber of Commerce officials said that the wheat would fill enough box cars to make a train 130 miles long. Enough one-pound loaves of bread could be made from the grain to circle the world eight and one-half times.

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce said they had not been advised what the farm board will do with the wheat. It was believed, however, that a strike of dockworkers at the Duluth and Superior Great Lakes harbors would hamper movement of the grain eastward.

Since June, 1930, to last February, the grain stabilization corporation purchased 111,832,019 bushels of wheat. Purchase since February, including the 23,000,000 bushels taken over today, is expected to increase the farm board's holdings by another 40,000,000 bushels.

Today's deal completes the farm board's operations in stabilizing wheat prices. Most of the 1930 crop now has either been milled or is in the possession of the farm board and the board will make no attempt to steady the price of the 1931 crop.

Since late in March, the farmers' national grain corporation, has increased its pegged price on wheat by one-half cent a bushel every 10 days.

The amount of wheat stored in elevators, which was taken over by the farm board today, is larger at this time than in other years because of the pegged price, Chamber of Commerce officials said.

Because of the higher price in the United States than in other countries, they declared, little wheat has been exported. At the present time, it was said, millers are purchasing only enough wheat to continue operations until the new crop is available two months from now.

Chicago, May 1.—George S. Milnor, general manager of the grain stabilization corporation, announced today that the 23,000,000 bushels of wheat the corporation accepted delivery on today at Minneapolis and Duluth will be moved from the terminals there only as milling demands and possible export market purchases are met.

"There is no necessity for moving this grain except as it is disposed of," Milnor said.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 1.—Elevator operators today said that farmers who have been holding their wheat since prices were $1.50 a bushel several years ago are bringing their grain to terminals for sale. Up until recently, they said, farmers had hopes that prices would regain their former heights. Current prices are 67 cents a bushel.

FAMILY OF 3 WIPED OUT IN ACCIDENT

Jamestown, N. Y., May 1.—(U.P.)—A family of three, including a one-year-old baby, was wiped out today because Rocco Gallo, 38, Falconer, N. Y., parked his automobile too close to the Erie railroad tracks.

The front of a passenger train became entangled with the bumper and carried the automobile 400 yards, demolishing it. Gallo, his wife, Mary, 39, and their baby, Agnes, 1, were killed.

Crown Prince Michael Has Diphtheria Attack

Budapest, Hungary, May 1.—(U.P.)—Crown Prince Michael of Roumania was suffering from diphtheria today at the palace of his mother at Bucharest.

The nine-year-old son of King Carol became ill on Wednesday, private advice said, but his condition was not serious.

NO GIRLS TO SIT IN CLASSES WITH FLAPPING PANT LEGS

Dulworth, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—The girls of Dulworth high school will not, it appeared today, wear pajamas to classes.

"Go home," said Albert Zech, school principal, "and put some clothes on." The remark was addressed to five girls who arrived at school clad in sleeveless pajamas with flapping trousers.

"No girl will ever sit in my classes with flapping pant legs." The girls went home and returned in more usual school dress.

SURVEY BANK ACCOUNTS OF POLICE OFFICERS

"SUBSTANTIAL AMOUNTS" DEPOSITED UNDER NAMES OF TWO IN MINNEAPOLIS

SPECIAL GRAND JURY IN MINNEAPOLIS INVESTIGATES GRAFT CHARGES

Minneapolis, May 1.—(U.P.)—Members of a special grand jury investigating charges of graft and corruption in the Minneapolis police department completed today a survey of accounts maintained in five banks by police and city officials.

"Substantial amounts" were found deposited under the names of two officials, it was said. Additional records were brought into court today and an investigation was begun into whether the officials kept more than one bank account each.

It was announced that all accounts of persons under suspicion of furnishing protection to liquor, gambling and vice resorts will have been checked within a few days. The jurors then will attempt to learn the source of incomes which they consider excessive.

Accounts of 54 Hennepin county banks will be brought into the jury room by bank officials and cashiers before the inquiry is concluded.

WHAT A 13 YEAR OLD LAD SHOULD SEE IN CAPITAL

PRESIDENT HOOVER HAS DEFINITE IDEAS ABOUT SUCH ITINERARY

WORKS OUT SIGHT-SEEING TOUR FOR YOUNG GUEST, BRYAN UNTIED

Washington, May 1.—(U.P.)—President Hoover has definite ideas about what a thirteen year old lad should see.

They include the Washington monument, the home of George Washington, how they make money in the bureau of engraving, the Roosevelt collection of animals in the national museum, the Lindbergh plane, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the zoo.

That at least is the sightseeing tour he worked out with his young guest, Bryan Untied, the quiet but very confident young man brought from Colorado because of his heroism in a school bus tragedy.

The call for breakfast today found young Untied with all of Mr. Hoover's ideas fulfilled, except the trip to the zoo. He promised to take that trip the first thing, if his six-year-old admirer, Peggy Ann Hoover, will let him out of her sight that long.

White House attaches have been closely following a childhood romance which appears to have developed between the boy hero bordering on young manhood and the White House grandchild with long brown curls.

Little Miss Hoover was seen acting as hostess to the country boy from Colorado, drinking in tales of the cowboys on the plains, listening to the doleful music of the harmonica as played by Bryan, and tagging along behind him everywhere he goes.

Their association may soon be cut short to permit Untied to return home. While the White House is cautious about divulging the time of his departure, indications are that Bryan would leave the executive mansion today.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY IS OBSERVED IN WORLD

AUTHORITIES IN MANY COUNTRIES RESTRICT DISORDERS TO MINIMUM

STATEWIDE HUNGER MARCH INITIATED BY DEMONSTRATION AT COLUMBUS, OHIO
(By United Press)

International Labor Day was celebrated in all parts of the world today with police and troops on guard in many countries to restrict disorders to a minimum.

A sharp clash occurred in Germany, where communists and fascists engaged in a gun fight in which seven were wounded.

In Berlin a policeman was critically wounded and about a score of extremists were arrested.

French officials arrested or deported a similar number of agitators but maintained the calmest atmosphere of any May Day since the war.

Hundreds of persons were reported arrested in Japan to prevent demonstrations.

Police clashed with demonstrators at Adelaide, Australia, arresting half a dozen.

New York, May 1.—A threat of fighting between communists and socialists in a proletarian May Day "pageant of progress" led Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney to concentrate several hundred mounted and well-armed policemen today at Union Square, ready to put down any disorders.

Oklahoma City, May 1.—Governor W. H. Murray today ordered 5,000 national guardsmen because of "alarms reports of threatened food riots and unusual activity by agitators."

Governor Murray said his action was prompted by recent thefts of large quantities of explosives from oil company warehouses in several cities throughout the state.

Tokio, May 1.—Sixteen persons, including several policemen, were injured today when authorities put into effect their announced intention to supervise May Day demonstrations.

Of 707 arrested, 202 were released, police said. Thousands of persons marched in a May Day parade, which passed without incident.

Vienna, Austria, May 1.—Twice the usual number of May Day spectators watched 70,000 persons parade today, without incident.

Chicago, May 1.—About 1,200 communists expected to parade here today in what they termed a "thoroughly peaceful demonstration."

Cleveland, O., May 1.—A statewide hunger march, which is to converge on the capital, was to be initiated today by a mammoth demonstration in Public Square.

The state committee of unemployed councils announced the marchers would start out from the square and would be joined en route by delegates from other cities.

Boston, May 1.—More than 350 policemen surrounded Boston Common today to prevent any communistic celebration of May Day. Police were ordered to resort to nightsticks freely to end any riots.

Cape Town, South Africa, May 1.—May Day demonstrators, shouting "we want bread," fought with police today. A few were injured and several arrests were made. Police clubbed the demonstrators and dispersed them after they had raided the Carlton hotel and two famous clubs.

Warsaw, Poland, May 1.—Five persons were wounded, including a policeman, when communists attempted a demonstration today in spite of an official ban against May Day celebrations. Otherwise the city was quiet.

New York, May 1.—New York's annual May Day celebration marked by three district groups in demonstrations in Union Square, got under way promptly on schedule and with no disturbance today.

Barcelona, Spain, May 1.—Fatal rioting broke out today when a May Day (Continued on Page 8, Column 1)

23 MILLION BUSHELS STORED IN ELEVATORS

PURCHASE COMPLETED AT TERMINAL ELEVATORS, MINNEAPOLIS AND DULUTH

LARGEST EXCHANGE OF GRAIN EVER COMPLETED IN 1 DAY ON ANY WORLD MARKET

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—The federal farm board today took control of 23,061,000 bushels of wheat stored in terminal elevators at Minneapolis and Duluth, completing purchase of grain bought in recent months for May delivery.

Officials of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, which handled the transaction, said it was probably the largest exchange of grain ever completed in one day on any world market.

The Chamber of Commerce clearing house turned the grain, most of which was owned by elevators, over to the grain stabilization corporation, a farm board subsidiary. The transaction was for cash.

Payment was made on the basis of the wheat price at the time each individual purchase of wheat for May delivery was made. The payment totaled about $18,000,000.

Today's transaction brought the amount of wheat which the farm board is expected to hold on July 1, when the 1931 crop becomes available, to approximately 200,000,000 bushels.

In commenting on the magnitude of the transaction, Chamber of Commerce officials said that the wheat would fill enough box cars to make a train 130 miles long. Enough one-pound loaves of bread could be made from the grain to circle the world eight and one-half times.

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce said they had not been advised what the farm board will do with the wheat. It was believed, however, that a strike of dock-workers at the Duluth and Superior Great Lakes harbors would hamper movement of the grain eastward.

Since June, 1930, to last February, the grain stabilization corporation purchased 11,832,019 bushels of wheat. Purchase since February, including the 23,000,000 bushels taken over today, is expected to increase the farm board's holdings by another 40,000,000 bushels.

Today's deal completes the farm board's operations in stabilizing wheat prices. Most of the 1930 crop now has either been milled or is in the possession of the farm board and the board will make no attempt to steady the price of the 1931 crop.

Since late in March, the farmers' national grain corporation, has increased its pegged price on wheat by one-half cent a bushel every 10 days. The amount of wheat stored in elevators, which was taken over by the farm board today, is larger at this time than in other years because of the pegged price, Chamber of Commerce officials said.

Because of the higher price in the United States than in other countries, they declared, little wheat has been exported. At the present time, it was said, millers are purchasing only enough wheat to continue operations until the new crop is available two months from now.

Chicago, May 1.—George S. Milnor, general manager of the grain stabilization corporation, announced today that the 23,000,000 bushels of wheat the corporation accepted delivery on today at Minneapolis and Duluth will be moved from the terminals there only as milling demands and possible export market purchases are met.

"There is no necessity for moving this grain except as it is disposed of," Milnor said.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 1.—Elevator operators today said that farmers who have been holding their wheat since prices were $1.50 a bushel several years ago are bringing their grain to terminals for sale. Up until recently, they said, farmers had hoped that prices would regain their former heights. Current prices are 67 cents a bushel.

FAMILY OF 3 WIPED OUT IN ACCIDENT

Jamestown, N. Y., May 1.—(U.P.)—A family of three, including a one-year-old baby, was wiped out today because Rocco Gallo, 33, Falconer, N. Y., parked his automobile too close to the Erie railroad tracks.

The front of a passenger train became entangled with the bumper and carried the automobile 400 yards, demolishing it. Gallo, his wife, Mary, 39, and their baby, Agnes, 1, were killed.

Crown Prince Michael Has Diphtheria Attack

Budapest, Hungary, May 1.—(U.P.)—Crown Prince Michael of Rumania was suffering from diphtheria today at the palace of his mother at Bucharest.

The nine-year-old son of King Carol became ill on Wednesday, private doctors said, but his condition was not serious.

Your Mother goes or
I go...this Minute!

AN orphan—Flo called herself—that evening we met in the city—strangers—lonely. After that night—I lived for her passionate lips—lips that enticed me into marriage.

Flo spent wildly—kept me broke—baby came—and Flo took pneumonia. When my poor, old widowed mother sold her house to pay our bills—she had to live with us. Two women—one roof—that's when hell cut loose! Kind, noble—Ma did all the work—never complained. Flo sulked, nagged—even cursed Ma for kissing baby—for little things—for nothing at all.

Then Ma took neuralgia—couldn't work. Flo kept growing nastier—UNTIL—that day Ma broke a pitcher—trivial thing—a molehill that flared into a mountain. "Get out—out of my home, you worthless hag"—Flo screamed and swinging on me—"This roof's too small—she's got to go, Eddie—or out I go—this minute!"

"Stop," I roared. "You're cruel as a snake." Flo moved toward me—voluptuous arms circled my neck—"Ma's sick," I struggled on, "No friends—no place to go—she'd die! Before you drive her out"—Flo's lips sought mine—"I'll see you—damn you—I'll see you—you..."

Which woman did Eddie choose? Did his slavish desire for Flo tear into shreds his sense of justice—send into the streets his aged mother who worked, sacrificed, gave all to make them happy?

Or did destiny force Eddie to drive from his home this wife who had made him so happy—had borne his child—and whose embraces were still an ecstasy he craved like dope?

You simply must read for yourself MY MOTHER AND MY WIFE—a helpless husband's own true story of how his wife and mother—loving him with equal fierceness—dragged his soul through hell and how he finally solved this terrible domestic tangle, the like of which has wrecked a million homes.

Your Mother goes or
I go... this Minute!

An orphan—Flo called herself—that evening we met in the city—strangers—lonely. After that night—I lived for her passionate lips—lips that enticed me into marriage.

Flo spent wildly—kept me broke—baby came—and Flo took pneumonia. When my poor, old widowed mother sold her house to pay our bills—she had to live with us. Two women—one roof—that's when hell cut loose! Kind, noble—Ma did all the work—never complained. Flo snickered, nagged—even cursed Ma for kissing baby—for little things—for nothing at all.

Then Ma took neuralgia—couldn't work. Flo kept growing nastier—UNTIL—that day Ma broke a pitcher—trivial thing—a molehill that flared into a mountain. "Get out—get out of my home, you worthless hag"—Flo screamed and swinging on me—"This roof's too small—she's got to go, Eddie—or out I go—this minute!"

"Stop," I roared. "You're cruel as a snake." Flo moved toward me—voluptuous arms circled my neck—"Ma's sick." I struggled on, "No friends—no place to go—she'd die! Before you drive her out"—Flo's lips sought mine—"I'll see you—damn you—I'll see you—you..."

Which woman did Eddie choose? Did his slavish desire for Flo tear in to shreds his sense of justice—send into the streets his aged mother who worked, sacrificed, gave all to make them happy?

Or did destiny force Eddie to drive from his home this wife who had made him so happy—had borne his child—and whose embraces were still an ecstasy he craved like dope?

Show Windows

SUMMER months with their automobile trips soon will be calling attention once more to one of the peculiar contradictions evidenced in American communities. Individually, few people are more prone than Americans to "put their best foot forward," "trim their show windows," or, by whatever figure it is described, says the St. Paul Dispatch, to make outward appearances inviting and attractive. Collectively, the corporate personality of American citizens, as it is embodied in their cities, seems possessed of an attitude of precisely the opposite character.

Communities that are most carefully insistent upon cleanliness throughout the city, in the interests of health, safety and appearance, tolerate without concern, rubbish heaps at their very doorstep. More frequently than not, the first impression a traveler gains of a strange town is influenced by an unsightly dump ground, a pile of used automobiles, wrecks of unused buildings, or some other eye-sore equally offensive. Whether the city limits are approached by rail or highway the worst of a town usually is the first seen. Individually, Americans are supposed to be strong on "putting up a good front" but, collectively it seems that the "worst is none too good" for the community front yard.

Here in Brainerd good work was done last year in cleaning up the State Trunk Highway No. 2 and No. 19 approaches to Brainerd. The city dump was made a working institution with a caretaker in charge and regulations carried out regarding deposits of rubbish and waste. This spring, however, careless people have dropped waste, papers, boxes and other rubbish in places along the highway border and it does not contribute to the tidiness that was so in effect last year.

The rail approaches to Brainerd have been well improved and the Northern Pacific railway itself has set a wonderful example in cleaning up and keeping tidy its extensive right of way.

Another thought regarding "show windows." After all is said and done, it is incumbent on the visitors in a dress up town and community not to scatter picnic waste on the highways. Even now, before the tourist season is in full swing, one finds paper boxes, newspapers, luncheon remains, etc., scattered at intervals along highways. Tourists should see that a highway is kept clean. If you have such waste in a car, do not scatter it on a roadway where the wind will blow it along and make any thoroughfare look unsightly.

Let's be tidy and neat in town and on the roadways. It makes our visitors feel well disposed to the places they visit and it gives all a feeling of satisfaction to know that cleanliness and tidiness are worth while virtues contributing to civic importance.

Minnesota Club Women's Objectives

OBJECTIVES of Minnesota Club Women are very commendable and if all or even a small part of them are achieved, it will do much to benefit humanity in general. These objectives are summarized as follows:

Encourage a greater spirit of cooperation between rural and urban women.

Advance and support public health work in every community, and develop a definite health program for each county in the state.

Show the value of better equipment in the homes of our rural communities.

Establish a family budget and economic program—including regular savings.

Urge a course of religious training for all children in their own churches.

Sponsor a flower show in every community as an aid in beautifying our towns.

Help law enforcement by obeying the laws ourselves.

Have more music in all clubs and rural schools.

Keep our clubs non-sectarian and non-political.

Complete the raising of funds for all scholarships already established.

Make definite plans for raising Minnesota's quota of the General Federation and State Foundation Fund.

Increase our membership, laying special stress upon rural communities.

A complete county organization in every county with three or more clubs.

That organized womanhood is a recognized asset in the world affairs today is evidenced very emphatically by invitations to the Federation of Women's Clubs to participate in the ever-growing number of national and international conferences, says State President Mrs. Sam A. Rask.

The Federation, through President Mrs. Sippel, has actively participated in five major conferences in America during the past year: The White House Conference on Child Health and Protection; The President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership; the National Conference for the erection of the Columbus Lighthouse; the Conference of the Inter-American Institute of Intellectual Cooperation; and the Federation's cooperation with the President's Emergency Committee for Employment, in finding work for men and women.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs is now a great service group composed of 14,500 clubs distributed among all states of the Union.

Fairmont's Kindly Advice

THE Fairmont Sentinel gives this kindly advice which it is hoped the world at large will take advantage of.

"If you have never vacationed in Northern Minnesota resolve that you will do so this year."

"It's America's finest playground, and the half has not been told. See Minnesota first."

Two activities of Brainerd collide at intervals. House painting jobs are far from successes when they accumulate the dust and debris of rubbish fires. Paint up and clean up muss up each other.

THE DISPATCH last night carried more reading than one can usually absorb at one sitting. There was the eight-page local paper and a 20-page law supplement.

MAY DAY in Europe, generally a scene of some disturbance, seems to have been comparatively quiet today.

WADENA evidently intends to close shop tomorrow and come to the district music festival.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Following a party at Eagle's Nest, the home of wealthy Emily Hardy, the Baroness von Wiese is found murdered. Bhima Martin, young newspaper reporter, nicknamed "Bim," a guest at the party, assists her fiancé, Walter Vance, assistant chief of police, in unraveling the mystery. Bim identifies the shawl wrapped around the Baroness as Mary Frost's. Mary's husband, Ted, had been attentive to the Baroness. Bim had noticed Emily's butler and the Baroness, at the party, in secret conversation and recalled the maid's scream when she, too, found them together. A strip of uniform linen is found in the shrubbery. The police learn that the Baroness' maid was not in her room that night. The butler denies receiving a note from the Baroness. Bim discovers cuts on the maid's head and arm. She refrains from telling the police. The doors to the Baroness' room are found locked from the inside and her jewels stolen. The jewel case is found outside the window. Bim believes they would have the guilty party if they could find the person whom the Baroness met in the Summer house. The Frosts are called. Bim questions Mary about her shawl. Ted appears anxious, but Mary, unperturbed, says she couldn't find the shawl and left without it. A figure appears at the window and disappears. Bim investigates and finds the butler in the pantry. It is learned that Mary Frost returned for her shawl.

CHAPTER XII.

A SUBDUED rustle went through the group; it was as if everybody at once let go a breath. Walter and the Sheriff exchanged glances; the leaves of the little book rattled beneath Walter's fingers; Emily Hardy spoke sharply. "It was a good hour after the Frosts left that I told you to go, Imogene. You're sure Mrs. Frost came back?" "Certainly, Mrs. Hardy. I was going to call you but she said not to; that it didn't matter." "You didn't see Mrs. Frost when she returned?" Walter inquired of Em. "I did not," that lady boomed. "Last I saw of her was at ten thirty when she started out after Ted."

"They didn't leave together?" "He went ahead. He'd been drinking too much and gone sour and they'd had some words. Nobody paid any attention because he's often like that. Mary seemed a little upset herself, though."

Puzzling Disclosures

"When did you see the shawl?" Walter asked, resuming his questioning of the maid.

"Well, I saw Mrs. Frost take it off and lay it on the chair by the door. She said not to hang it away because she didn't think they'd be staying. And it was there after I got back from the kitchen."

"H'm—I see. Were you away from the dressing room more than once, Imogene?"

"Not really away," the girl declared, fluttering her lashes. "I just stepped out on the terrace by the door. I could see if anyone came in."

"Maybe," Walter muttered. "All right, then; how did the shawl get back after Mrs. Frost failed to find it at ten-thirty?"

"Why, Miss Allan brought it," said Imogene in a tone which reproved the policeman's stupidity.

"Miss Allan?" Once again Walter rustled the pages of his little book as his look met the Sheriff's.

"Certainly. At least—well, I didn't see her bring it because that must have been while I was in the kitchen but I suppose it was her because she took it away."

"Miss Allan took the shawl? What time was that?"

"Imogene shrugged and pouted. "How do I know? A little before I went to the kitchen and that was ten-thirty by the clock's clock. Miss Allan came and fixed her hair and then she started to go out on the terrace but changed her mind. She kept walking around as if she was trying to figure out something and then she went on out and I noticed the shawl was gone."

The Missing Link

"You didn't see her take it?" "No, I didn't, but I saw it around her when she went across the terrace into the garden."

"And the shawl was back when you returned from the kitchen. Did you have more than one cup of coffee, Imogene?"

"I wasn't out of the dressing room more than ten minutes," the maid retorted sniffily.

"But you're not sure it was Miss Allan who brought the shawl back, are you?"

"I didn't see her after she walked off into the garden until she came and got her coat to go home. The girl's petulant expression changed into a look of faint malice. Bim had seen her wear when she told Walter that the maid, Jane, had not been in her room all night. "I remember something else that happened," she began with a confidential air, "if you want me to tell."

"All right, Imogene, let's have it."

"Well, it was in the evening before dinner—not long before because I'd finished Mrs. Hardy and she'd gone down. Well, the Baroness' dressing room is right below my room and I heard a terrible quarrel going on there. My window was open and so was the one below and I heard them going it something fierce. The Baroness and her maid, it was, Imogene stated with triumph.

"Did you hear what they said?" Walter asked with only slight interest.

"No-o," the girl admitted regretfully. "Only one thing. At the last after they'd been raving perfectly awful the Baroness yelled, 'After tonight you get out.' Then it sounded as if someone fell and a door slammed and I didn't hear any more."

Bim watched the girl incredulously. She could not imagine the low-voiced Jane raving "perfectly awful" though the Baroness with her insolent manner and her disdainful way of looking down her nose seemed to fit into that picture fairly well.

Imogene was dismissed and she left somewhat reluctantly, Bim thought.

"She's jealous of Jane," she told them in a half amused, half scornful way. "She's jealous and trying to make out a case against the other maid."

Walter nodded and the Sheriff brought up a chortle. "Afraid the girl Jane's gunning for her job, I shouldn't wonder. That what's on your mind, Bim?"

"I don't believe Imogene takes her job very seriously, Mr. Reynolds. No, I wouldn't say she's concerned about her job. It's something else—something more important to her."

"What?" asked Reynolds so quickly that Bim was startled.

"Why—why," she floundered. "What is important to a girl like Imogene? A beau, I suppose. It would be my guess that Jane has been cutting in on Imogene's boy friend."

"She's a fast worker then. I've rummaged 'Jane's' only been here since yesterday afternoon."

"Some women," remarked Bim, wisely, "Don't wait for other women to work before they get jealous. They know by intuition what to expect."

"Why, Bim!" giggled Em as Walter shook his head over the girl's perspicacity.

"Let's have Jane back," he directed and Em again summoned the tall, pale-faced maid whose quiet, demurely presented striking contrast with Imogene's pertness.

"You quarreled with the Baroness last night?" Walter began.

"No, sir. Madame was in a nervous state after her journey and it made her irritable. She found fault with the way I did her hair, but that was all, sir."

"She talked very loud when she found fault? Three things?"

"Madame sometimes allows herself to get out of control; that was not unusual, sir. I do not recall that she threw anything."

"Did she discharge you? Did she say, 'After tonight you get out'?"

"Oh, no, sir. At least—" Bim fancied that fear crossed the blue eyes as they turned upon her fiercely. "At least, not last night. She has said that sometimes, but only in her temper. She never meant it, sir."

"Did she strike you, Jane? Knock you down?"

Bim had no doubt about the fear in the girl's eyes now; it flickered and was gone. But the low voice was very steady. "Never, sir. After all, Madame the Baroness was a lady."

Was there, Bim wondered, something sardonic in the veiled look the girl flung backward as she left the library? And the cut on her temple, concealed so deftly beneath the drawn-down hair—what did that mean? Why, Bim asked herself, hadn't she thought—no mention that cut and the long scratch on the girl's shoulder to Walter?

When Minutes Count

Now Walter, had something to ask of Em. "We've overlooked one point, Mrs. Hardy. What time did the Baroness leave the party and where did she go when she left?"

"You know I've been wracking my brain about that ever since you stepped in here last night, Mr. Chief. She was on the terrace after Mary and Ted went for I saw her there talking to Bunny Baird. Then Pete took the Baron and the Baroness must have just sort of vanished. I'd say she disappeared about eleven although it might have been later for I wasn't noticing much about the time by then. It might have been nearly half past eleven—I can't say. I don't know where she went either though now I suppose it was into the garden."

"She could," mused Walter, "Have walked along the corridor and reached through the door of the dressing room for the shawl—if it was there at the time—and gone on out while Imogene was out just before Mrs. Frost returned at eleven-thirty. Only someone must have seen her. It stands to reason that one of the guests or the servants must have seen the Baroness go into the garden; they must have caught sight of the person she went to meet."

It was then that Miss Laura Allan arrived.

Show Windows

SUMMER months with their automobile trips soon will be calling attention once more to one of the peculiar contradictions evidenced in American communities. Individually, few people are more prone than Americans to "put their best foot forward," "trim their show windows," or, by whatever figure it is described, says the St. Paul Dispatch, to make outward appearances inviting and attractive. Collectively, the corporate personality of American citizens, as it is embodied in their cities, seems possessed of an attitude of precisely the opposite character.

Communities that are most carefully insistent upon cleanliness throughout the city, in the interests of health, safety and appearance, tolerate without concern, rubbish heaps at their very doorstep. More frequently than not, the first impression a traveler gains of a strange town is influenced by an unsightly dump ground, a pile of used automobiles, wrecks of unused buildings, or some other eye-sore equally offensive. Whether the city limits are approached by rail or highway the worst of a town usually is the first seen. Individually, Americans are supposed to be strong on "putting up a good front" but, collectively it seems that the "worst is none too good" for the community front yard.

Here in Brainerd good work was done last year in cleaning up the State Trunk Highway No. 2 and No. 19 approaches to Brainerd. The city dump was made a working institution with a caretaker in charge and regulations carried out regarding deposits of rubbish and waste. This spring, however, careless people have dropped waste, papers, boxes and other rubbish in places along the highway border and it does not contribute to the tidiness that was so in effect last year.

The rail approaches to Brainerd have been well improved and the Northern Pacific railway itself has set a wonderful example in cleaning up and keeping tidy its extensive right of way.

Another thought regarding "show windows." After all is said and done, it is incumbent on the visitors in a dress up town and community not to scatter picnic waste on the highways. Even now, before the tourist season is in full swing, one finds paper boxes, newspapers, luncheon remains, etc., scattered at intervals along highways. Tourists should see that a highway is kept clean. If you have such waste in a car, do not scatter it on a roadway where the wind will blow it along and make any thoroughfare look unsightly.

Let's be tidy and neat in town and on the roadways. It makes our visitors feel well disposed to the places they visit and it gives all a feeling of satisfaction to know that cleanliness and tidiness are worth while virtues contributing to civic importance.

Minnesota Club Women's Objectives

OBJECTIVES of Minnesota Club Women are very commendable and if all or even a small part of them are achieved, it will do much to benefit humanity in general. These objectives are summarized as follows:

Encourage a greater spirit of cooperation between rural and urban women.

Advance and support public health work in every community, and develop a definite health program for each county in the state. Show the value of better equipment in the homes of our rural communities.

Establish a family budget and economic program—including regular savings.

Urge a course of religious training for all children in their own churches.

Sponsor a flower show in every community as an aid in beautifying our towns.

Help law enforcement by obeying the laws ourselves.

Have more music in all clubs and rural schools.

Keep our clubs non-sectarian and non-political.

Complete the raising of funds for all scholarships already established.

Make definite plans for raising Minnesota's quota of the General Federation and State Foundation Fund.

Increase our membership, laying special stress upon rural communities.

A complete county organization in every county with three or more clubs.

That organized womanhood is a recognized asset in the world affairs today is evidenced very emphatically by invitations to the Federation of Women's Clubs to participate in the ever-growing number of national and international conferences, says State President Mrs. Sam A. Rask.

The Federation, through President Mrs. Sippel, has actively participated in five major conferences in America during the past year: The White House Conference on Child Health and Protection; The President's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership; the National Conference for the erection of the Columbus Lighthouse; the Conference of the Inter-American Institute of Intellectual Cooperation; and the Federation's cooperation with the President's Emergency Committee for Employment, in finding work for men and women.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs is now a great service group composed of 14,500 clubs distributed among all states of the Union.

Fairmont's Kindly Advice

THE Fairmont Sentinel gives this kindly advice which it is hoped the world at large will take advantage of.

"If you have never vacationed in Northern Minnesota resolve that you will do so this year."

"It's America's finest playground, and the half has not been told. See Minnesota first."

Two activities of Brainerd collide at intervals. House painting jobs are far from successes when they accumulate the dust and debris of rubbish fires. Paint up and clean up muss up each other.

THE DISPATCH last night carried more reading than one can usually absorb at one sitting. There was the eight-page local paper and a 20-page law supplement.

MAY DAY in Europe, generally a scene of some disturbance, seems to have been comparatively quiet today.

WADENA evidently intends to close shop tomorrow and come to the district music festival.

CHAPTER XII

A SUBDUED rustle went through the group; it was as if everybody at once let go a breath. Walter and the Sheriff exchanged glances; the leaves of the little book rattled beneath Walter's fingers; Emily Hardy spoke sharply. "It was a good thing after the Frosts left that I told you to go, Imogene. You're sure Mrs. Frost came back?" "Certainly, Mrs. Hardy. I was going to call you but she said not to; that it didn't matter." "You didn't see Mrs. Frost when she returned?" Walter inquired of Em. "I did not," that lady boomed. "Last I saw of her was at ten thirty when she started out after Ted." "They didn't leave together?" "He went ahead. He'd been drinking too much and gone sour and they'd had some words. Nobody paid any attention because he's often like that. Mary seemed a little upset herself, though."

Puzzling Disclosures

"When did you see the shawl?" Walter asked, resuming his questioning of the maid.

"Well, I saw Mrs. Frost take it off and lay it on the chair by the door. She said not to hang it away because she didn't think they'd be staying. And it was there after I got back from the kitchen."

"I'm — I see. Were you away from the dressing room more than once, Imogene?"

"Not really away," the girl declared, fluttering her lashes. "I just stepped out on the terrace by the door. I could see if anyone came in."

"Maybe," Walter muttered. "All right, then; how did the shawl get back after Mrs. Frost failed to find it at ten-thirty?"

"Why, Miss Allan brought it," said Imogene in a tone which reproved the policeman's stupidity.

"Miss Allan?" Once again Walter rustled the pages of his little book as he looked at the Sheriff's.

"Certainly. At least—well, I didn't see her bring it because that must have been while I was in the kitchen but I suppose it was her because she took it away."

"Miss Allan took the shawl? What time was that?"

Imogene shrugged and pouted. "How do I know? A little before I went to the kitchen and that was ten-thirty by the clock. Miss Allan came and fixed her hair and then she started to go out on the terrace but changed her mind. She kept walking around as if she was trying to figure out something and then she went on out and I noticed the shawl was gone."

The Missing Link

"You didn't see her take it?" "No, I didn't, but I saw it around her when she went across the terrace into the garden."

"And the shawl was back when you returned from the kitchen. Did you have more than one cup of coffee, Imogene?"

"I wasn't out of the dressing room more than ten minutes," the maid retorted sniffily.

"But you're not sure it was Miss Allan who brought the shawl back, are you?"

"I didn't see her after she walked off into the garden until she came and got her coat to go home." The girl's petulant expression changed into a look of faint malice. Bim had seen her wear when she told Walter that the maid, Jane, had not been in her room all night. "I remember something else that happened," she began with a confidential air, "if you want me to tell."

"All right, Imogene, let's have it."

"Well, it was in the evening before dinner—not long before because I'd finished Mrs. Hardy and she'd gone down. Well, the Baroness' dressing room is right below my room and I heard a terrible quarrel going on there. My window was open and so was the one below and I heard them going it something fierce. The Baroness and her maid, it was," Imogene stated with triumph.

"Did you hear what they said?" Walter asked with only slight interest.

"No-o," the girl admitted regretfully. "Only one thing. At the last after they'd been raving perfectly awful the Baroness yelled, 'After tonight you get out! Then I sounded as if someone fell and a door clattered and I didn't hear any more.'"

Bim watched the girl incredulously. She could not imagine the low-voiced Jane raving "perfectly awful" though the Baroness with her insolent manner and her disdainful way of looking down her nose seemed to fit into that picture fairly well.

Imogene was dismissed and she left somewhat reluctantly, Bim thought.

"She's jealous of Jane," she told them in a half amused, half scornful way. "She's jealous and trying to make out a case against the other maid."

Walter nodded and the Sheriff brought up a chortle. "Afraid the girl Jane's gunning for her job, I shouldn't wonder. That what's on your mind, Bim?"

"I don't believe Imogene takes her job very seriously, Mr. Reynolds. No, I wouldn't say she's concerned about her job. It's something else—something more important to her."

"What?" asked Reynolds so quickly that Bim was startled.

"Why—why," she floundered.

"What is important to a girl like Imogene? A beau, I suppose. It would be my guess that Jane has been cutting in on Imogene's boy friend."

WIN THEIR THIRD STRAIGHT GAME, DEFEATING BROWNS

SCORE 10 TO 9, IN 11 INNINGS, BUT 2 OF THEIR PLAYERS INJURED

THIRD BASEMAN WILLIE KAMM TWISTS HIS ANKLE IN THE GAME

Chicago, May 1.—(U.P.)—The Chicago White Sox, with a foothold on first division, had four regulars on the casualty list today.

The White Sox won their third straight game yesterday by defeating the St. Louis Browns, 10-9 in 11 innings, but two of their players were injured. Third baseman Willie Kamm had to retire early when he twisted his ankle in fielding a grounder. Outfielder Mel Simons was hit on the elbow by a pitched ball in batting practice and forced out of the line-up.

Ted Lyons, who won 22 games last season, and Smead Jolley, hard hitting outfielder, have been useless to the White Sox since the season opened. Lyons, who has pitched only two innings, is having him arm treated and hopes to start a game within 10 days.

After being knocked out of the box in his first three starts, Tommy Thomas returned to his old form in blanking Detroit Wednesday, 3-0. The only other pitchers who have been able to win a game are Hal McKain, who has hung up three victories, and Pat Caraway, who has annexed two.

The hitting of Bill Cissel, who has driven in 14 runs in 12 games, Carl Reynolds and Fred Eichrodt has supplied most of the White Sox punch.

KENTUCKY ENTRY SCORES ITS 10TH VICTORY IN 13 STARTS THURSDAY

(By United Press)

Louisville is steadily making hay in the American Association while the spring sun shines.

The Kentucky entry scored its tenth victory in 13 starts Thursday at the expense of Minneapolis. A significant feature of the win was that it was made on 10 hits as compared to the opposition's 12.

St. Paul, second to Louisville, blanked Indianapolis, taking a four-run game. Betts allowed seven hits, but his mates backed him up so well Indianapolis was unable to make them count.

Milwaukee dropped into a fourth-place tie with Kansas City in losing to Toledo, 13 to 4.

Columbus advanced to third place when the Red Bird game with Kansas City was postponed because of wet grounds.

Today's schedule:
Columbus at Kansas City.
Toledo at Milwaukee.
Louisville at Minneapolis.
Indianapolis at St. Paul.

With "Benny" Foster allowing only two hits and striking out nine of the batters that faced him, the J. C. Penney Kittenball team gained undisputed possession of first place in the city Kittenball league last night by defeating Montgomery Ward 4-1. Last year's city league champs got away in the lead in the first inning and were never headed.

"Cannoball" Werner, big Ward southpaw, was effective in the closing innings but his former mates got to him for seven hits during the contest. He struck out 3 men.

A crowd of about 200 fans watched the game that meant the league leadership.

Calvin Orth of Pennys was outstanding in last night's game. He contributed a home run to the Penney club with one man on base, and robbed Wards of a home run by making a difficult catch of Bush's hard drive.

Foster was aided by exceptional good fielding by his team-mates while Ward errors let in several runs.

The Thompson Oils meet the John

M. Bye Clothing Company team at 6:15 o'clock tonight at the N. P. grounds. The Oilers and last year's runners-up should put up quite a close battle to keep out of the league cellar. Both teams lost their opening games.

HIGH SCHOOL, COLLEGE STUDENTS PREDOMINATING

5 OF 8 NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS HELD BY THE STUDIOUS BOYS

REMAINDER WON BY PLUMBER, FARMER AND LEATHER WORKER

New York, May 1.—(U.P.)—The Gene Tunney influence apparently has spread to amateur boxing, and five of the eight national championships were held today by high school and college students.

The remaining championships, decided last night in the finals of the national amateur athletic union tournament at Madison Square Garden, were won by a plumber, a farmer and a leather worker.

Two other students reached the championship round, one being defeated in an all-collegiate battle, and the other losing to the farm boy in the only setback for the "intellectuals."

The new champions, their residences, and occupations are:

112-pound—Babe Triscaro, Cleveland, O., high school student.
118-pound—Joseph Ferrante, Boston, Mass., high school student.
126-pound—Anthony Scarpatti, New York, plumber.

Taxing the Long Hitters

By HARDIN BURNLEY

BILL TERRY..
WILL THE NEW SACRIFICE FLY RULE RUIN HIS CHANCES OF HITTING OVER 400 AGAIN THIS YEAR?

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

THE ambition of practically all baseball sluggers, and the delight of most fans, is the rare 400 hitter who plays in more than a hundred games during a season. Since 1900, only seven—Lajoie, Jackson, Cobb, Thrice, Sisler twice, Hornsby thrice, Heilmann and Terry—have attained that swatting accolade.

Now that class seems doomed for, during the past winter, the rulemakers decided that hereafter a sacrifice fly will be counted as a time at bat. That should cut the batting average of a player from fifteen to twenty-five points in 1931. The boys who hit so-called long balls—those high arching swats that advance runners even after such flies have been caught—will be especially hard hit.

"Bill" Terry, N. Y. Giant first baseman, hit 401 during 154 games in 1930—the first time that record was reached in five years. After a brief but stirring holdout period, he rejoined the McGrawmen this Spring in excellent form. But his hopes of breaking 400 had vanished as soon as he learned of that new sacrifice fly rule.

Terry agrees with "Babe" Ruth who, naturally, thinks the long hitters should get a break. The Sultan of Swat and all the satraps of sock believe that a batter—who can drive a ball so far that it cannot be returned to the infield in time to prevent a base runner from advancing—should receive substantial recognition. The old not-a-time-at-bat scoring of a sacrifice fly seemed just to them, and many neutral critics besides.

The Babe and Giant Bill are far from enraged over the new rule but they do insist that sacrifice flies which score runs should not count as times-at-bat.

As Ruth puts it, "those long h'ts are really homers that fall a bit short because they go too high. It takes batting to boost out those long lifts, I know."

Taxing the Long Hitters

By HARDIN BURNLEY

BILL TERRY..
WILL THE NEW SACRIFICE FLY RULE RUIN HIS CHANCES OF HITTING OVER 400 AGAIN THIS YEAR?

THE ambition of practically all baseball sluggers, and the delight of most fans, is the rare .400 hitter who plays in more than a hundred games during a season. Since 1900, only seven—Lajoie, Jackson, Cobb three, Sisler twice, Hornsby three, Heilmann and Terry—have attained that swatting accolade.

Now that class seems doomed for, during the past winter, the rulemakers decided that hereafter a sacrifice fly will be counted as a time at bat. That should cut the batting average of a player from fifteen to twenty-five points in 1931. The boys who hit so-called long balls—those high arching swats that advance runners even after such flies have been caught—will be especially hard hit.

"Bill" Terry, N. Y. Giant first baseman, hit .401 during 154 games in 1930—the first time that record was reached in five years. After a brief but stirring holdout period, he rejoined the McGraw-men this Spring in excellent form. But his hopes of breaking .400 had vanished as soon as he learned of that new sacrifice fly rule.

Terry agrees with "Babe" Ruth who, naturally, thinks the long hitters should get a break. The Sultan of Swat and all the satraps of sock believe that a batter—who can drive a ball so far that it cannot be returned to the infield in time to prevent a base runner from advancing—should receive substantial recognition. The old not-a-time-at-bat scoring of a sacrifice fly seemed just to them, and many neutral critics besides.

The Babe and Giant Bill are far from enraged over the new rule but they do insist that sacrifice flies which score runs should not count as times-at-bat.

As Ruth puts it, "those long h'tists are really homers that fall a bit short because they go too high. It takes batting to boost out those long lifts, I know."

You may have read about the character assassins described in yesterday's column. If you did, and even if you didn't, you will enjoy knowing about the little mouse of a woman who helped keep a man and wife together by her quiet painstaking, sensible tactics, all of which I was privileged to observe in another tearful moment. It was lunch hour and you haven't any idea, unless you are a trained observer, what a lot you can learn about human nature, during your lunch hour.

The pretty woman with the mink coat was telling, sadly, and with eyes that showed signs of recent weeping, how dear she and her husband were to a separation. She loved him. He loved her. They just couldn't agree about things and so he went out of the house evenings rather than argue. And what they argued about was a series of trifles. It showed they were too devoted and needed a little release. The wife should take a trip, leaving the husband for a little while without her pretty presence and adoration. All married life is like that. Sometimes there isn't enough money for the vacation, but in such cases there is usually enough hard work or plenty of children (or both) to keep the married minds from trifles that are so completely unimportant, yet home-wrecking.

The friend—and she surely was one—told earnestly. She was interested. She wanted to help. Her eyes told you that. She heard the whole story through without doing much talking and not one bit of sympathizing. She said yes and no and while her ears were wide open, her mind was working. When people's minds work they don't talk so much.

When the tearful wife had finished the plain woman told her: "But Jimmy's such a nice man, and he adores you, and he wouldn't for the world hurt you, but it's just a case of too close contact for too long a time. I'll tell you what to do. Go home and tell him you love him and don't want to leave him but perhaps it's better for both of you for a few weeks. Go and visit some happy friends. Write him often and don't rehearse your misunderstandings. Don't argue on paper. Don't complain. Don't chide him for anything. Tell him you miss him more every day. Think while you are away, of all the happy times you've had together and how much you love each other and how you would feel if you were ever separated by death. Hold the thought that you can't live without each other."

When you are so lonely you don't care what he says, and he is so lonely you could do almost anything and it would be all right with him—come home."

I learned a little later that the woman giving these directions is a Miss. Perhaps that's what is wrong with matrimony, so many of the women who should be wives, aren't. And so many of the men who shouldn't be husbands, are.

The lady looked much happier when she had listened to her friend's advice and it was quite evident that she was going to try the recipe.

If you have money enough to do nothing but adore your husband, and more responsibility than women have, this mink-coated beauty, you might try a little vacation and save your domestic happiness. If you don't think it is worth clinging to, any woman who has divorced her husband for some petty reason, and if she is honest she will tell you it would have been better if she had clung fast.

Divorce isn't all it is advertised to be—and it certainly is advertised. There are cases where it is not only right, but advisable, but they are so few that they can be listed among rare exceptions. In 99 cases out of 100, a divorce could be avoided if grown up people with good minds acted like grown up people with good minds.

Young Husband: Your wife may be ill. I'd talk to her and see if she won't visit a doctor, or go and see the doctor yourself without telling her, and see if you can get some sane advice on what to do. Two things are possible, a horrible temper or illness. Was she like that before marriage? Don't hesitate to talk to your family doctor. If it's temper sit her down hard and tell her what's what. She will listen and think more of you for not standing for these tirades. It's nice of you to understand that she may be ill. You are a good husband. Let me know what the doctor says.

Texas-Oddie: The man doesn't love you or he wouldn't ask you to do things that you do not think are right. You don't love him. You love love. You wrote me because you are in doubt. Let me settle your mind for you, will you? He isn't worth your time, and the sooner you drop him the better. You will have to put him out of your life eventually, and it's better to do it now while the record is clear. It will hurt you less and you will have all of your pride and self respect intact. Please do.

Lilly—Detroit: You are a grump. No matter what anybody does for you it's wrong. If they give you silk you want cotton. If they give you gold you want platinum. If I were your husband I'd give you exactly nothing until your sense of appreciation got back to normal. You don't think, do you, that it is any fun to keep on giving to someone who acts snippy because the gift isn't twice as much? I'd even forget Christmas if I had a wife like you—at least I'd pretend to. That might make you sit up and take notice again.

S. K. S.—Elkin, Ill.: Yes, that's the rule at St. Vincent's and any other Catholic orphanage. If the baby is born of Catholic parents, it shall be adopted into a family of the same religion. No, they aren't mean about it, because I've known of babies coming from that very orphanage and going into homes that were not Catholic, the religion of the child's own parents being unknown. Don't talk to me about St. Vincent's. I know it like a book. Its one hundred percent right.

Jessie B.: Oh, horsefeathers! Women who won't let their men folks—husbands and sons—smoke in the house, and put ashes here and there, are decidedly in error. Men can't be ordered around like that. There's always a club or someplace they can go where they won't be bossed around and made to walk a tightrope. After all it's their home too, isn't it? Why should the woman at the head of the house put restrictions upon them if they don't do anything worse than go to sleep in a chair and let cigarette ashes drop on the carpet? Anyway ashes are good for moths. Men who get jumped upon when they put a wet glass on the table, or drop ashes, or don't put the chairs back where they belong, never have much of a hankering to stick around home. I'd prefer the ashes Jessie, to innumerable lonely evenings. Your husband says the bills, why not let him think it's his home too?

BACK in the days when men were men and mutton-chop whiskers were popular, mechanically roasted coffee was also "the latest."

Dashing blades have changed their garb since those days, thank heaven! Yet coffees are still mechanically roasted—with one exception.

Nash's Toasted Coffee is that exception. It is a really different coffee—different because it is toasted—while other coffees are still roasted.

Toasting, scientists have proved, creates 35.7% more flavor from the same green coffee than old fashioned roasting.

Nash's Toasted Coffee gives you this added richness and depth of flavor. Serve this truly modern coffee—the one different coffee since mutton-chop whiskers graced the diamond.

BACK in the days when men were men and mutton-chop whiskers were popular, mechanically roasted coffee was also "the latest."

Dashing blades have changed their garb since those days, thank heaven! Yet coffees are still mechanically roasted—with one exception.

Nash's Toasted Coffee is that exception. It is a really different coffee—different because it is toasted—while other coffees are still roasted.

Toasting, scientists have proved, creates 35.7% more flavor from the same green coffee than old fashioned roasting.

Nash's Toasted Coffee gives you this added richness and depth of flavor. Serve this truly modern coffee—the one different coffee since mutton-chop whiskers graced the diamond.

FUNDS SHORTAGE FOR PEAT FIRES

State Gives Orders no Money is to be Spent on Fighting Peat Fires

OTHER AGENCIES ASSIST

Several Prosecutions for Setting Fires to be Made by Forest Service

Because of the limited amount of fire fighting funds available at the present time, rangers have been instructed by the State Forestry Department that no money is to be spent on the fighting of peat fires.

The rangers therefore, have been requested to obtain all the cooperative help possible from counties, townships and land owners on which peat fires are burning to extinguish these fires.

With the burning of numerous peat fires at this time and new peat fires starting from surface fires there is no doubt will be a serious continued fire heavy rains put the damper on them, heavy rains put the damper on them, E. H. Rhodes, district forest ranger said today.

The majority of yesterday's fires were reported out or under control today.

A small blaze burned over eight acres in Southeast Brainerd this morning. Forest service men and the Brainerd fire department cooperated in putting it out. There was no damage to buildings.

Three fires are reported to have been fully set east of Jenkins on Section 11 burning a meadow and doing considerable damage to a young growth of standing timber. Two sets of farm buildings were saved from the flames.

Two fires were reported set south of the Baxter school house yesterday but these were put out before they gained large proportions. N. P. railway fire patrolmen and Wm. Van Zant, township fire warden came upon them at the opportune time.

The large fire that burned in Nokay Lake township for two days is now under control although the forestry department still has men patrolling it to prevent an outbreak.

The fire in Bull Moose township, Cass county, that gained large proportions the past two days is also under control.

Another fire covering three sections in Moose Lake township, Cass county, is also under control but men are still patrolling it.

A number of warrants will be sworn out by the Forestry Department in Crow Wing and Cass counties for the starting of fires without permits and allowing them to spread.

Mr. Rhodes left this morning for Cass and Morrison counties to assist patrolmen and township fire wardens in prosecutions against those starting fires without permits which have caused considerable damage in these counties.

G. M. Conzel, forest commissioner and his assistant A. F. Oppel passed through Brainerd yesterday on their way back to St. Paul after an inspection trip of the district.

Additional fire fighting equipment has passed through Brainerd to be used in fighting fires in the vicinity of Itasca park.

Aside from the large amount of young growth of timber that has been destroyed there is without doubt hundreds of nests of game birds consumed.

Lowering of lakes has also caused a hazard by the drying up of bog lands and peat lands, many now being dry as tinder.

St. Paul, May 1.—(U.P.)—With low humidity and a wind of 25 miles an hour fanning brush and forest fires in a 5,000 acre area of Minnesota's woodlands, A. E. Pimley, fire prevention chief of the state forestry department, today said the situation was the most critical in the history of Minnesota.

No casualties have been reported but rangers in the woods said the flames might creep up to settlers' communities and possibly endanger villages and towns.

Exceptionally low humidity when the reading was only 5—the lowest ever recorded on the forestry department's tabulation—late yesterday has hindered the fire fighters. Forecasts of possible rain this afternoon or tonight heartened the battlers.

Grover M. Conzel, state forester, returned today from a tour of the northwestern section of the state. He said the fire already had burned over a large portion of 5,000 square miles.

One fire has swept through 3,000 acres in one section.

Conzel said the forestry department is ready for one of the worst forest fires in its history.

"The fire situation right now is the worst I have seen since I became state forester," Conzel told the United Press.

Most of the major blazes are confined in an area stretching north from Aitkin to Brainerd, Bemidji and Blackduck and as far west as Red Lake Falls. The area takes in more than 100 miles in the heart of Minnesota's woodlands.

Many peat fires and meadow, brush and timber fires have been reported in the northwestern and central portions of the state. Little trouble was anticipated in the northeastern sections above Duluth and Superior, the department said. Heavy rains last fall have kept timber and brush moist and there is no likelihood of a dangerous situation there unless there is a period of drying weather.

Lieut. George Occhinerio Was in Managua Hotel When Shock Crumbled Nicaraguan City

BURIED AN HOUR IN DEBRIS
Rescued, Transported by Plane to Ship and Then Sent to San Diego, Calif., Hospital

Lieut. George Occhinerio, of the Marines, husband of a Brainerd girl, knows how it feels to be in an earthquake and to lie in the shadow of death. In a letter from San Diego, Calif., hospital to his wife, he describes his experience in the Managua earthquake.

He left Mesaya where he had been stationed, on his way to Managua the day before the earthquake. He arrived there in the morning of the fateful day and had registered at a hotel. The shock came and he rushed for a door. Then everything at hand seemed to fall on him. After an hour his cries were heard and he was dug out and taken to a field hospital.

He remained there two days and then was transported by plane to Corinto, where he boarded a hospital ship and was sent to San Diego. Two operations were necessary to adjust his hip. It had been severely crushed and dislocated. It will be months before he recovers.

TELEPHONE MEN EXPERTS IN WORK

Building of Lines Involves Tasks Which Require Training and Experience

There's much more to constructing telephone lines than sticking poles in the ground and stringing wires on them, according to H. D. Hoffmann, manager for the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company. And when it comes to keeping lines in condition to provide service 24 hours a day the year around it is a job that requires men who are expert in several different lines of work.

Sunday morning the 60 foot pole lead in the alley between Front and Laurel streets was removed at an early hour. The day and the hour were chosen for the reason that the electric current had to be shut off during the removal to eliminate interference with live wires. While a considerable number of old poles and wire have been removed, a large amount of modern construction was necessary to carry on the service which was mostly in the nature of underground cable. Altogether 945 ft. of conduit was laid and 8,783 ft. of new cable was added. Most of the cable was of special construction to take care of both local and long distance wires.

The telephone company gives its construction and maintenance men a course in first aid work and accident prevention. This has repeatedly proved of value in cases where telephone men have been able to give aid to persons outside the company who have been injured in accidents, overcome by gas or apparently drowned.

The construction crew is in charge of G. W. Miller, foreman, of Minneapolis. This entire job was completed without a single accident or complaint of any nature which speaks well for the foreman and his men.

3,000 BABY CHICKS BURNED TO DEATH AT CALEDONIA

Caledonia, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—Three thousand baby chicks were burned to death last night when the South Side Hatchery was damaged badly by fire. Loss was estimated at $25,000.

The two-story frame building had a capacity of 200,000 chickens and the baby chicks burned were in the storage brooder for local trade.

The flames were discovered in the second floor by Bernice Smith, telephone operator who was returning home from work at 10:30 p. m. She notified Lloyd Heintz, who was working on the first floor. He in turn called firemen. The loss was covered by insurance.

Those attending the Cimarron show at Walker Friday enjoyed it very much.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Williams of Minneapolis are at their cottage on Woman Lake for a few weeks.

Will Shepard plowed for Wirick last Sunday.

Frank and Dodo Brockelmeyer, Mrs. Caldwell, Dorothy and Roy Whitted took dinner and supper Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Williams.

Some of the neighbors enjoyed the surprise party Tuesday night on Ted Zaske.

Frank Brockelmeyer had a truck load of woven and barb wire hauled out from town this week.

STUDENTS TO STUDY MINING OPERATIONS

Thirty four students, sophomores in the mining class of the University of Minnesota will arrive on the Cuyuna Range tomorrow for a first hand study of mines. Professor E. M. Lambert and Louis Helin will have supervision. They will make their headquarters at the Inland Steel Company and do underground surveying at the Armour No. 1 mine.

TELEPHONE MEN EXPERTS IN WORK

Building of Lines Involves Tasks Which Require Training and Experience

There's much more to constructing telephone lines than sticking poles in the ground and stringing wires on them, according to H. D. Hoffmann, manager for the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company. And when it comes to keeping lines in condition to provide service 24 hours a day the year around it is a job that requires men who are expert in several different lines of work.

Sunday morning the 60 foot pole lead in the alley between Front and Laurel streets was removed at an early hour. The day and the hour were chosen for the reason that the electric current had to be shut off during the removal to eliminate interference with live wires. While a considerable number of old poles and wire have been removed, a large amount of modern construction was necessary to carry on the service which was mostly in the nature of underground cable. Altogether 945 ft. of conduit was laid and 8,788 ft. of new cable was added. Most of the cable was of special construction to take care of both local and long distance wires.

The telephone company gives its construction and maintenance men a course in first aid work and accident prevention. This has repeatedly proved of value in cases where telephone men have been able to give aid to persons outside the company who have been injured in accidents, overcome by gas or apparently drowned.

The construction crew is in charge of G. W. Miller, foreman, of Minneapolis. This entire job was completed without a single accident or complaint of any nature which speaks well for the foreman and his men.

3,000 BABY CHICKS BURNED TO DEATH AT CALEDONIA

Caledonia, Minn., May 1.—(U.P.)—Three thousand baby chicks were burned to death last night when the South Side Hatchery was damaged badly by fire. Loss was estimated at $25,000.

The two-story frame building had a capacity of 200,000 chickens and the baby chicks burned were in the storage brooder for local trade.

The flames were discovered in the second floor by Bernice Smith, telephone operator who was returning home from work at 10:30 p. m. She notified Lloyd Heintz, who was working on the first floor. He in turn called firemen. The loss was covered by insurance.

SCHOOLS TUNE UP FOR MUSIC CLASH

More Than 600 Singers, Musicians From Ten Schools to Compete

HERE ALL DAY SATURDAY

Four Bands, Several Glee Clubs and Quartets and Ensembles on Programs

Final rehearsals were being held today in ten different high schools in the district for the Fifteenth District High School Musical Contest at the Washington high school auditorium, Brainerd, morning, afternoon and evening, tomorrow.

More than 600 students of voice and instrumental will participate in the songfest to decide winners to enter the state meet this month at Minneapolis.

Chiefly vocal selections will be heard at the 10 a. m. and 11 a. m. programs. Four bands will compete, Staples, Wadena; Bertha and Wabkon; in the afternoon in addition to vocal and glee club competitions. The programs will start at 1 p. m. and 2:30 p. m.

The finals in the festival program will take place at 7:30 p. m.

Schools competing will be: Division "B"—Aitkin, Brainerd, Crosby-Ironton, Little Falls, Staples, Wadena; Division "C"—Bertha, McGregor, Onamia, Wabkon.

The district trophy awarded to the school winning the largest number of points in the contest will be presented by Superintendent F. C. Schwartz, Wadena, at the close of the evening program.

Tickets for the meet are now on sale at Schmitz's, Sixth Street.

Junior Fisheries Statistical Agents Needed

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced that until May 26 it will accept applications for the position of junior fisheries statistical agent, at entrance salaries of $1,200 to $1,980 a year, for the Bureau of Fisheries.

Under general supervision, appointees will assist in the collection of difficult statistical data of the fisheries. Certain specified education or experience is a preliminary requirement.

Full information may be obtained from George E. Falconer, secretary of the United States Civil Service Board of Examiners at the post office in this city.

PRES. HOOVER DOES A FAVOR FOR AL SMITH

Washington, May 1.—(U.P.)—President Hoover did a favor today for his old political opponent, Alfred E. Smith of New York.

The chief executive pressed the famous Yukon gold telegraph key in the White House telegraph room at 10:30 a. m., thereby illuminating the lobby and opening the doors of the new Empire State building in New York.

The building was built by Smith and associates, including John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, and William F. Kenny of New York. Smith is president of the building corporation.

Attends Conference on 'Expository Preaching'

The Rev. Charles M. Brandon of Brainerd, is attending a conference being held this week in the national capital on "Expository Preaching." It is taking place at the College of Preachers of Washington Cathedral with 26 clergymen from 12 states in attendance.

The College of Preachers is one of several educational institutions associated with Washington Cathedral. It now occupies a handsome group of collegiate gothic structures, given by the late Alexander Smith Cochran of Yonkers, N. Y., who also provided a $1,000,000 endowment fund.

Conferences for clergymen from all parts of the land are held regularly throughout the year at the College of Preachers. It functions as a post-ordination school in the art of the pulpit. The foremost preachers and theologians in the United States are among its conference leaders.

KING AND QUEEN OF SIAM END VISIT TO WASHINGTON

Washington, May 1.—(U.P.)—Their majesties, the King and Queen of Siam, terminated their official visit here today, leaving on a special train for Purchase, N. Y.

They were bid farewell by a group of high ranking American officials, amid all the pomp and ceremony with which they were welcomed Tuesday. At Purchase, the king will undergo an operation of a cataract from his left eye.

DRAMA OF SEA, MADMAN RUNS SEA FREIGHTER

CREW BARRICADED IN CABINS
OF SANTA CECILIA TO
ESCAPE HIS FURY

ONE APPEAL FOR AID SENT OUT
BY RADIO OFF CAPE SAN
LUCAS, MEXICO

San Diego, Calif., May 1.—(UP)—The picture of a madman controlling a ship, the crew barricaded in cabins to escape his maniacal fury, was visualized by shipping men today as hours passed with no new word from the freighter Santa Cecilia, which had issued a call for help.

The drama of the sea was being enacted off Cape San Lucas, Mexico, it was believed, as the ship steamed toward Panama from Honolulu.

Efforts of radio stations to contact the ship failed. Operators sat at their keys for hours at a stretch, failing to get a response to their calls.

First information of the crew's plight was contained in a radio dispatch to the eleventh naval district here:

"We need aid. Are there any naval vessels near us? Maniac armed, dangerously and violently insane, impossible to subdue."

No naval boats were in the vicinity of the craft, so the report was relayed to the twelfth naval district headquarters at San Francisco, where representatives of the United States department of health were called in.

A message went sputtering out over the air:

"By some means, give him opiates, in his food or drink."

The situation first became known Wednesday, when the Radio Corporation of America received a dispatch from the captain who asked them:

"Is there a hospital at Acapulco (Mexico)?"

Messages from Acapulco said no word had been received from the craft at that point.

The Santa Cecilia was about two days out of Corinto, Nicaragua, shipping men said. It is owned by the Natilus Steamship Company of Philadelphia. The number of men in the crew was not learned.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY IS OBSERVED IN WORLD

demonstration was held in front of the government house, where Francisco Macia, head of the Catalonian provisional government, resides. One was killed and eleven wounded. About 300 shots were fired.

A policeman and 15 communists were wounded in a May Day demonstration at Bilbao today. Police dispersed the gathering.

London, May 1.—Rioting broke out today in Hyde Park, traditional home of untrammelled expression of opinion, when May Day demonstrators went beyond the privilege of free speech and attempted violence. Six were arrested.

Moscow, May 1.—Fifty thousand red army soldiers and the latest improved mechanized units, including tanks, paraded today in Soviet Russia's chief May Day celebration. It required two hours for the parade to pass the historic Kremlin Square, where the body of Lenin lies.

A spectacular air show featured the program. Six squadrons, each containing five biplanes followed by a five-motored bomber flanked by two trimotored ships and three biplanes, stunted overhead and showered down leaflets.

Before the parade, the red army took its annual oath of loyalty to the Soviet Union and to the world's working class.

Dr. Roberts Rouses Public to Realize Sargon's Importance

So startling have been the results accomplished by Sargon, that scores of outstanding physicians have broken the rule of a lifetime and given it their unqualified endorsement. Dr. C. J. Roberts, M. D., of Philadelphia, graduate University of Pennsylvania and for 26 years medical examiner for the Pennsylvania Railroad, said:

"After an investigation of the Sargon formula, for which I was expressly retained, I find that it is rich in those elements which help to bring revitalized vigor, strength and endurance to pale, tired-out, debilitated men and women. It enriches the blood of those suffering with simple anemia and is without a doubt a highly valuable formula that the entire public should know about."

"The Sargon Pills are an important part of the treatment."

DRAMA OF SEA, MADMAN RUNS SEA FREIGHTER

CREW BARRICADED IN CABINS
OF SANTA CECILIA TO
ESCAPE HIS FURY

ONE APPEAL FOR AID SENT OUT
BY RADIO OFF CAPE SAN
LUCAS, MEXICO

San Diego, Calif., May 1.—(UP)—The picture of a madman controlling a ship, the crew barricaded in cabins to escape his maniacal fury, was visualized by shipping men today as hours passed with no new word from the freighter Santa Cecilia, which had issued a call for help.

The drama of the sea was being enacted off Cape San Lucas, Mexico, it was believed, as the ship steamed toward Panama from Honolulu.

Efforts of radio stations to contact the ship failed. Operators sat at their keys for hours at a stretch, failing to get a response to their calls.

First information of the crew's plight was contained in a radio dispatch to the eleventh naval district here:

"We need aid. Are there any naval vessels near us? Maniac armed, dangerously and violently insane, impossible to subdue."

No naval boats were in the vicinity of the craft, so the report was relayed to the twelfth naval district headquarters at San Francisco, where representatives of the United States department of health were called in.

A message went sputtering out over the air:

"By some means, give him opiates, in his food or drink."

The situation first became known Wednesday, when the Radio Corporation of America received a dispatch from the captain who asked them:

"Is there a hospital at Acapulco (Mexico)?"

Messages from Acapulco, said no word had been received from the craft at that point.

The Santa Cecilia was about two days out of Corinto, Nicaragua, shipping men said. It is owned by the Natus Stemship Company of Philadelphia. The number of men in the crew was not learned.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY IS OBSERVED IN WORLD

demonstration was held in front of the government house, where Francisco Macia, head of the Catalan provisional government, resides. One was killed and eleven wounded. About 300 shots were fired.

A policeman and 15 communists were wounded in a May Day demonstration at Bilbao today. Police dispersed the gathering.

London, May 1.—Rioting broke out today in Hyde Park, traditional home of untrammelled expression of opinion, when May Day demonstrators went beyond the privilege of free speech and attempted violence. Six were arrested.

Moscow, May 1.—Fifty thousand red army soldiers and the latest improved mechanized units, including tanks, paraded today in Soviet Russia's chief May Day celebration. It required two hours for the parade to pass the historic Kremlin Square, where the body of Lenin lies.

A spectacular air show featured the program. Six squadrons, each containing five biplanes followed by a five-motored bomber flanked by two trimotored ships and three biplanes, stunted overhead and showered down leaflets.

Before the parade, the red army took its annual oath of loyalty to the Soviet Union and to the world's working class.

Dr. Roberts Rouses Public to Realize Sargon's Importance

So startling have been the results accomplished by Sargon, that scores of outstanding physicians have broken the rule of a lifetime and given their unqualified endorsement. Dr. C. J. Roberts, M. D., of Philadelphia, graduate University of Pennsylvania and for 26 years medical examiner for the Pennsylvania Railroad, said:

"After an investigation of the Sargon formula, for which I was expressly retained, I find that it is rich in those elements which help to bring revitalized vigor, strength and endurance to pale, tired-out, debilitated men and women. It enriches the blood of those suffering with simple anemia and is without a doubt a highly valuable formula that the entire public should know about."

"The Sargon Pills are an important part of the treatment."
